Abstract

Key message Major  $A_1$  cytoplasm fertility restoration loci,  $Rf_2$  and  $Rf_5$ , were found in the West African sorghum. A potential causative mutation for  $Rf_2$  was identified. KASP markers were validated on independent material.

Citace článků....

The image shows a screenshot of a scientific article page from Theoretical and Applied Genetics. The article title is "QTL for nodal root angle in sorghum (Sorghum bicolor L. Moench) co-locate with QTL for traits associated with drought adaptation". The authors listed are E. S. Mace, V. Singh, E. J. Van Oosterom, G. L. Hammer, C. H. Hunt, D. R. Jordan. The article is from January 2012, Volume 124, Issue 1, pp 97-109. It has 1,6k downloads and 64 citations. The abstract is visible, starting with "Nodal root angle in sorghum influences vertical and horizontal root distribution in the soil profile and is thus relevant to drought adaptation. In this study, we report for the first time on the mapping of four QTL for nodal root angle (qRA) in sorghum, in addition to three QTL for root dry weight, two for shoot dry weight, and three for plant leaf area. Phenotyping was done".

On the right side of the page, there is a "Cite article" dropdown menu that is open, showing the following options:
